Entire First Batch Of POWs Turn To Reds

Allied Explanations Shunned By 30 South Korean Prisoners

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Thirty passive South Koreans unanimously chose communism in today's opening round of Allied efforts to win back 351 South Korean, British and American war prisoners who haven't returned.

The recorded strains of South Korea's national anthem played in the background as 27 men and 3 women listened quietly to ROK officers read a plea to come home. Then each walked out the door leading back to communism.

It appeared possible the Allies drew from a stacked deck. The first group was chosen by the prisoners themselves in the Communist-dominated camp. Observers speculated each of the 30 might be a confirmed Red.

Thirty more South Koreans are to be interviewed at 7 p. m. Wednesday (EST).

Original plans called for 30 South Koreans to be interviewed daily for about 11 days before 22 Americans and one Briton are called, but a high American officer said the schedule is "not inflexible," indicating the non-Koreans might be called sooner.

RED CHINA'S Peiping radio hinted that the 22 Americans may refuse to go home, saying that a committee has been "elected to prepare for Christmas celebration."

The 30-0 score gives the Reds a propaganda theme to take some of the edge off the humiliating beating they took in their interviews. They got back less than 3 per cent of 2,500 Chinese and Koreans they interviewed.

The Allied prisoner interviews were strikingly calm compared to the wild scenes the Reds had. The blue-uniformed prisoners walked through the mud into the five explanation tents on a bare hillside and sat quietly.

The South Korean explainers read their statements, scarcely deviating from the text. They promised the prisoners that if they returned the government would give them promotions, rewards, medical treatment and pardons for any crimes they might have committed in North Korea.

A 22-year-old girl prisoner who chose communism propped her head in one hand as she listened, facing away.

"I believe you have had hard time during your captivity," the explainer said.

"I DID NOT have a hard time," she replied.

"Now you have to choose your future very carefully," he continued. "One door leads to darkness, dictatorship and suffering; the other door leads to freedom."

When he finished his plea, the explainer said emphatically:

"We will keep this promise."

He asked her if there were any questions.

"Yes," she said, "I have no family in either North or South Korea; that ends any discussion about my family. The Korean people should control their own country."

"I see no Koreans controlling the country—just American capitalists. And I see no freedom in South Korea. I want to fight to the death to drive out the last American."

Central U.S. Due For More Rains

CHICAGO (AP)—More wet weather was in prospect for most of the central part of the country today.

Clear skies and cool weather prevailed over most of the eastern third of the nation. Temperatures generally were on the cool side with readings in the 30s extending into the deep South.

Showers spread from the plains states across the Mississippi into Illinois and Wisconsin during the night. Falls were light.

A mixture of rain and snow fell in the northern plains with freezing rain in northern Minnesota.

Transfer Rapped

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—The Foreign office said today Nationalist China has protested a U. S. proposal to transfer the Amami Oshima Islands to Japan. The islands lie between Okinawa and Japan.

Members of Lindbergh's mountain climbing party said Hopf, a Stamford University student, slipped on an ice patch and fell 800 feet, dying before medical aid could be brought up. New Push For Route 23 Bypass Depends Upon State's Reaction

City Council Tuesday night touched off a new drive to win approval for the Route 23 bypass here, taking under study an ordinance that may clear the way for the re-routing plan along lines of strategy that have yet to be tested.

The lawmakers heard first reading of a measure under which the city would give "consent" for construction of the bypass through a western section of the community, and offer the state $10,000 as the city's share of the construction and right-of-way costs.

Councilman Richard Penn urged that the ordinance be held to first reading "until the public has a chance to know" details of the new proposal. It marked a change in basic strategy of the bypass forces, who tried unsuccessfully several times to clear the way for the highway change through a "detachment" ordinance.

However, efforts to withdraw a western section of the corporation limits—and thus allow the state to build the bypass with virtually no expense to the city—were blocked on several fronts. This method apparently has been discarded and the city would be reconciled, under the new ordinance, to paying a substantial share of the expense.

Can Factories Shut Down By Union Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A strike by the CIO United Steelworkers shut down the nation's two largest can manufacturers today.

The big union ordered the walk-out last midnight against the American Can Co. and the Continental Can Co. after a deadlock in negotiations for new contracts.

American Can and Continental employ 33,000 USW members in 68 plants in 30 states and five plants in Canada. Of these, American operates 36 in 13 states and 1 in Canada employing about 20,000 workers. Some 13,000 other union members work in 32 plants of Continental in 14 states and 4 in Canada.

The two companies employ more than 60,000 persons in all. About half of these are represented by other unions.

Closing of plants will hit the citrus industry hard because it depends on tin cans to market its products. The strike also will affect the steel industry, which supplies most of the metal for cans.

Representatives of both companies met separately with union bargaining teams yesterday and last night in a last-ditch effort to avert the walkout.

Federal mediators stood by until the final minutes waiting for a break, but none came.

Talks got underway in New York about five weeks ago and switched to Pittsburgh last week.

The union seeks a 12-cent hourly wage increase and several fringe improvements for members who now average $1.80 an hour in the United States and $1.50 in Canada.

Both companies made the same offer—a 10½-cent hourly wage package boost.

The decision has now been made, I understand, to liquidate the program by selling the projects to private enterprise."

Ohio Defense Areas To Get School Funds

Pike County Expected To Receive Top Study For Federal Assistance

COLUMBUS (AP)—Southern Ohio's Atomic plant area likely will get top consideration when federal funds are distributed for new schools in defense areas.

That's the opinion of A. D. St. Clair, state supervisor for federal assistance, who said nearly two score local school districts in Ohio have applied for the special federal aid.

The federal government assumes the responsibility of helping provide school houses in those areas where federal activities caused population jumps, St. Clair said.

He added the requests for federal aid have not been added up because the total amount in actual allotments will be different.

The deadline for filing applications was Nov. 24. St. Clair said most applications came from the atomic plant, Dayton, Columbus, Cleveland and Lima areas.

AT PRESENT only $70 million in federal aid is available for the entire country. St. Clair said Congress is expected to make more money available in January.

In several cases requests for federal aid from Ohio school districts amounted to more than $1 million, St. Clair said. He declined to name the districts.

Lions Roaring Again For City Expansion Plan

Members of Circleville Lions Club, in regular meeting Tuesday night, reaffirmed their support of the city's plan to annex a large area north of the corporation. The club was one of the first civic organizations to endorse the action.

It was the latest development as public sentiment behind the proposal continued to gain in overwhelming proportion. The city's plan is now being studied by Pickaway County commissioners.

A public hearing is scheduled Dec. 8. Among the latest public comments on the annexation step were the following:

Henry Helweggen, 400 N. Court St.:

"Annexation is an excellent idea in order to get some more space in which Circleville can expand. It'll be better for housing and for taxation and general facilities. Outlying districts already are taking advantage of city facilities so let them pay a little for them."

MRS. NAT C. LEFKO, 352 E. Franklin St.:

"I surely and definitely think annexation would be the best thing for expansion and progress. It would mean keeping the Circleville people more at home, and so many wouldn't be going out of town for business or other reasons. It would show that Circleville really is growing, and is not a backward city."

Herschel T. Hill, implement dealer, 123 E. Franklin St.:

"Well about annexation, I'm for it 'yes' and 'no,' you might say. If we're going to take in this new territory and then wait for 10 years before putting in sewers, I'd say 'no.' But if we're really going ahead and develop the new area right away, I say 'yes, go ahead with the plan.'"

Cleveland Seeks Would-Be Kidnaper

CLEVELAND (AP)—Extra policemen were sent to the east side today to search for a tall prowler who tried to kidnap a 3-year-old girl and appeared at five other homes in the neighborhood.

The man, believed to be a mental case, snatched Darlene Marie Iles from her bed, but dropped her unharmed outside a first-floor bedroom window and fled. Darlene aroused her mother by screaming after she either squirmed loose or was dropped by the prowler.

Navy Tightening A-Security Rule

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy is ordering its personnel not even to repeat previous public statements on atomic matters unless they are "checked in advance" with the Atomic Energy Commission.

It is circulating an ironclad interpretation of the broadly worded request by the White House recently that atomic energy comments by government officials be checked first with the AEC.

Ike OKs Dulles' Blast On McCarthy, Pleading For Free World Unity

Sir Winnie Flying Atlantic For Bermuda Bi 93 Parley

BERMUDA (AP)—Britain's Prime Minister Churchill winged over the Atlantic today to the Big Three meeting here which he hopes will be a major step toward the last big goal of his crowded 79-year life—lasting world peace.

French Premier Laniel was expected tomorrow and President Eisenhower Friday. An authoritative source reported the U. S. Chief Executive hoped to win France's ratification of the European army pact with an assurance "combat effectiveness" in Europe if France OK'd the army plan.

Churchill's American-built Stratocruiser, which left London late last night, was scheduled to refuel at Gander, Nfld., and arrive in Bermuda in mid-afternoon.

This holiday spot's worst recorded storm blew out to sea in advance of Sir Winston's arrival after drenching the island yesterday with 3½ inches of rain in just an hour. A fresh northeasterly wind brought clear weather.

The most stringent security regulations in Bermuda's history were set up to guard the Big Three during their talks, which begin Friday. Troops, barbed wire and other devices ringed the conference headquarters, the Mid-Ocean hotel, to make it as spy-proof and assassin-proof as possible.

Churchill, whose principal aim is to sell Eisenhower and Laniel the idea that Russia might now agree to a live-and-let-live policy between East and West, appeared likely to run into an American roadblock in any attempt to concentrate initially on world problems in general.

Americans reportedly plan to demand attention first to what they consider the prime question facing the free world—French ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty setting up the proposed six-nation European army, including German troops.

The source reporting Eisenhower's plan to pledge maintenance of American strength in Europe emphasized that it involved "combat effectiveness," instead of a definite number of troops.

This gave the impression that new developments, especially in the atomic field, might cause the United States to feel she could help defend Europe against possible Russian aggression with better weapons, more efficient organization and fewer men.

Laniel won a grudging vote of confidence from the French National Assembly last week on his policy of fostering European unity.

But deputies made it clear their approval did not extend to the projected European army. The EDC Treaty is due to come before the Assembly next February.

One French objection to the pact, signed by West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and France, is that Britain is not associated more closely with it.

Britain reportedly already has told France she cannot bind herself to keep on the continent the 4½ divisions she now has in Germany. However, Churchill is expected to renew previous British offers of cooperation with EDC and consultation with it before any British troops are shifted.

Chief Repeats Hope For End To Red Probes

President Also Says Brownell Due To Reply To Current Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, backing up Secretary of State Dulles' blast at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.), declared today that unity among free nations "is our only hope for survival."

Like Dulles, Eisenhower did not mention McCarthy by name, but he told his news conference he is "in full accord with the statements made yesterday by Secretary Dulles."

Dulles had asserted criticism such as that fired by McCarthy attacks the very heart of United States foreign policy.

Eisenhower had anticipated questioning about the matter, and announced he had prepared his views in writing because, he said, they would be the only words he would have to say on the subject.

The President then read the statement in which he declared: "I am in full accord with the statements made yesterday by Secretary Dulles in his press conference."

THE PRESIDENT also took sharp issue with McCarthy on another subject. He repeated he believes the Communists in government issue will be out of the picture by the time the congressional elections roll around next year.

McCarthy told a nationwide radio and television audience last week that Communism would be an issue and that the question of continuing his hunt for subversives would be the main issue in the election of a Republican Congress.

And he had asked whether the administration should send "perfumed notes" to the Communists in Korea about prisoners who remain unaccounted for. He said that in some security matters the administration was "bating zero."

Dulles replied, blasting at "arrogant" methods of dealing with U. S. Allies. He declared he and Eisenhower "do not propose to throw away" the assets of Allied cooperation "by blustering and domineering methods." He said he did not intend "using threats and intimidation to compel them (our Allies) to do our bidding."

Among yesterday's speakers were Sen. John W. Bricker (R-Ohio) and Farm Bureau president Everett F. Rittenour.

Bricker, recently returned from a South American tour, said South American countries are seeking reduction of U. S. tariffs on minerals and wool. He said he opposes that.

The senator said lowering of those tariffs to allow greater South American competition in American markets would reduce production and therefore purchasing power in the West and South. Farm surplus then would continue to pile up, he asserted.

Rittenour said the world's greatest problem is production of enough food for people to eat. He said: "Until we raise the standard of living of all the peoples of the world, they are going to look upon us in the United States with envy, and under incitement of the Communists, are likely to attack us."

The Farm Bureau president said he doesn't believe the Soviet Union will attack the U. S. because: "So many Russians are engaged in farm production that not enough are left to produce consumer goods and war materials needed for a world-wide struggle."

Trustees Named By Farm Bureau

COLUMBUS (AP)—A. R. Wadsworth of Malvern, Carroll County, was elected to a three-year term as a state trustee of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

Re-elected to three-year terms were Guy Colwell, Defiance; L. F. Warbington, Sidney; H. D. Heckathorn, Forest; Wilbur F. Kidnocker, Chillicothe; E. J. Cook, New Vienna; Herman Ankeney, Xenia.

The shipping association charged the stoppage violated a Taft-Hartley law injunction, issued Oct. 5, which ended a strike on the waterfront. The federal court restrained any strike during an 80-day period expiring Christmas Eve.

William V. Bradley, president of the International Longshoremen's Assn., said: "I have called no strike for any time. On the contrary, I am trying to get the men back to work."

Many longshoremen, refused employment registration cards by the commission because of criminal backgrounds, set up picket lines outside the piers. Many registered longshoremen joined the picketing men in sympathy, and others with cards respected picket lines.

East, West U.S. Business Views At Odds

Westerners Growing Optimistic About Conditions In 1954

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Western optimism is at odds with Eastern caution on the business outlook for 1954.

In many sections of the fast-growing West, businessmen will tell you today: "1954 ought to be a pretty good year for us here—if the East just doesn't talk itself into a recession."

Many Westerners seem reconciled to a moderate dip in business next year, expecting their business to pull in their horns in sympathy with those of the East. In fact, in many Western communities a slight slow down is already becoming apparent.

But, in general, the West is counting on the momentum of its boom keeping it from feeling the full force of any dip that may develop next year in business and industry for the nation as a whole.

In Arizona—in the forefront of states that have boomed in population, new industries and small business firms during and since World War II—they are ready to mark time for awhile, if necessary, but actively planning for continued growth over the long haul. You couldn't talk them out of this optimism if you tried.

In Tucson and Phoenix they are still adding to the rows of houses that since the war have made a phenomenal march across the valley floors toward the mountains.

Some realtors worry lest they're overbuilt—in Tucson there are vacancies and rents have fallen from their post-decontrol high.

But the building continues. And new stores are going up to serve the multitudes of new residents. The Tucson newspapers are buying new presses and expanding their plants—"building for the next 10 years," their owners say.

The Phoenix papers are talking about a similar expansion to keep up with the record growth in population, advertising and circulation.

New houses are still going up in the San Francisco suburbs, although there are vacancies in some of the city's recent apartment housing developments.

California appears counting on further growth, and confident that the East's readjustment, as Californians call it, will put only a temporary damper on the West Coast boom.

Even the East's obsession with forecasting the worst amuses the Westerner.

Lausche Details Stand On Bingo

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche has amplified his stand against commercial bingo operations.

Asked what he planned to do about charity bingo games operated by benevolent and religious organizations, the governor said:

"My conviction is definite that most bingo operations are on a commercial basis. They are pretended to be for charity when in truth they are for private profit."

"I do not contemplate going into county after county in connection with this problem. We will, through appropriate action, demonstrate through the courts what is and what is not allowable."

The governor earlier indicated that he would take action to close commercial bingo games, possibly through padlock proceedings.

June Haver Plans Movie Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Negotiations are under way for actress June Haver to co-star in the movie "My Sister Eileen."

Miss Haver, who quit Hollywood and a $3,500-a-week job to enter a Catholic convent last February, may make her screen comeback early next year. She and her agent, Ned Marin, and producer Jerry Wald have gone over tentative plans, and a Columbia Pictures spokesman says "June likes the idea." Further talks are scheduled next week.

The 26-year-old actress was in the convent 7 months, studying to become a nun. Then she returned home, saying ill health forced her to give up religious life.

Year-End Cash For City May Be Near $5,000

Circleville may go into 1954 with a carry-over of approximately $5,000, as compared to an approximate carry-over of $2,000 at the beginning of this year.

Chairman George Crites of City Council's finance committee gave that picture of the year-end finances Tuesday night when the lawmakers met for their regular session. Council accepted a report by City Auditor Lillian Young for November.

Showing funds, receipts, expenditures and balances, it was submitted as follows:

General Fund, $25,966.22, $9,099.93, $16,902.13; Water Works Operating Fund, $8,798.50, $3,416.63, $5,381.87; Sewage Disposal Fund, $2,143.86, $2,985.03, $4,878.89; Auto Street Repair Fund, $480.45, $1,765.15, $8,653.45; Water Works Trust Fund, $100, $55, $2,035; Gasoline Tax Fund, none, $2,509.07, $2,477.73; Police Pension Fund, $1,665.15, $301.25, $13,255.25; Firemen Pension Fund, $1,632.15, $125, $17,143.07.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McCarthy can be relied on to muss the hair of anyone who tries to take him on in a knock-down-drag-out fight, with verbal or political weapons. He's proved it.

The Eisenhower administration has been in collision with him a number of times, thwarted him more than once, yielded to him upon occasion, but always has handled him gingerly. Up till now, anyway.

This may have been due to desire for cooperation, genuine liking for him, natural reticence, concern about being mugged up, or fear of splitting the Republican party which might follow an outright split with McCarthy.

While the Wisconsin Republican says the administration's batting average, in a few cases, is zero, the administration can claim it's batted a thousand in one department, at least.

That's in never saying anything unpleasant about McCarthy — directly.

Yesterday Secretary of State Dulles provided a good example of this in a statement which, while unmistakably aimed at McCarthy, never mentioned him by name.

The omission was so obvious that when McCarthy read it he grinned and said: "Do you think he could have been referring to me?"

President Eisenhower himself, by saying he never dealt in personalities, has led the way in avoiding a head-on clash by any direct reference which the senator could take to mean the gloves were off and a fight was on.

Yet, the technique which Dulles used yesterday puts upon news-papemen who covered his news conference the burden of saying Dulles was talking about McCarthy, although Dulles was unwilling to assume the burden himself.

In his broadcast a week ago, hitting both the Democrats and the Eisenhower administration, McCarthy raised the question of how to force the Chinese Communists to release some hundreds of prisoners of war still unaccounted for.

He found the answer in a theme he has been hammering at for months. He suggested this country's allies should end all trade with Red China and said this country should end aid to any ally which didn't.

"Are we going to continue to send perfumed notes, following the style of the Truman-Acheson regime?" he asked.

In his statement Dulles made it clear he was replying to McCarthy's criticism, for he said:

"Since . . . last week there has been a widely publicized criticism of this administration's foreign policy . . . that we spoke too kindly to our allies and sent them 'perfumed' notes . . . The criticism I refer to attacks the very heart of United States foreign policy."

Dulles left no doubt this statement was a deliberate one. He said it had the approval of the President. It had been written and mimeographed before he went to the news conference. He repeated it for movie and television cameras.

Whatever it is that inhibits Dulles—where McCarthy's name is

British Housing Program Approved

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons last night approved in principle the Conservative government's new housing program aimed at halting deterioration of Britain's six million rent-controlled homes and starting clearance of slum areas.

The lawmakers backed the measure on second reading by a 309-282 vote shortly before Prime Minister Churchill left London for the Big Three conference in Bermuda. The measure was sent to committee for final revision before its third and last reading in the House, a formality.

The most controversial feature of the bill, hotly opposed by the opposition Labor party, gives permission for landlords to raise rents provided the added income is earmarked for repairs and maintenance.

concerned—the senator isn't bothered by it. He's a lot more direct about Dulles than Dulles is about him.

McCarthy suffered his first big setback at the hands of the administration early this year when he tried to block Eisenhower's appointment of Charles E. Bohlen as ambassador to Russia. Bohlen got Senate approval.

But before that happened McCarthy publicly doubted Dulles' word that Bohlen was a good security risk and wanted the secretary to testify all over again but under oath, a procedure which carries a perjury charge for any one lying.

District's Civil Defense Planning Faces Puzzle In Statewide Test

Pickaway County's thin and fragile civil defense organization was faced Wednesday with the warning that all CD units in Ohio are expected to participate in a statewide test next Sunday.

Announcement of the exercise, designed to be the first of a series, was sent recently to Bernard Tait, Pickaway County civil defense director, with the request that it be withheld from the public until one week prior to the workout. Apparent purpose of this procedure was to let the comparatively few well-prepared districts capitalize on their work, and at the same time give the disorganized areas a chance to hurry a setup into operation.

Community leaders here seemed agreed that the county's CD organization falls in the latter category. Taking over the district CD helm from Ben Gordon, who had warned "the people won't wake up until a bomb drops," Tait has tried various methods to bring new life into the plans for emergency defense.

One phase of his efforts—first aid classes—drew large turnouts last Summer, but "only about three people" responded when an attempt was made to resume the classes this Fall. The classes have since been suspended, and Tait recently said:

"I'VE TRIED almost everything I know of to get the people interested in civil defense, but so far I know we aren't getting much of anywhere. If the general public has any ideas as to what we should do to revive the civil defense picture, I certainly wish they'd let me know."

"And now—with a statewide test staring us in the face—the sooner they let me know the better," Tait's phone number is 1019-L.

Tait planned to go to Columbus this week to determine details as to the county's participation in next Sunday's workout. He hoped to open contact with the civil defense directors of all the neighboring counties.

He likewise hoped "something can be done" to put the local ground observation corps back on the job without delay. A few volunteers are listed for duty at the Elsea Airport observation post, Tait said, but many more are needed before the post can be maintained on a day-and-night basis.

Advance information on the test set for next Sunday indicated all localities will be expected to have their ground posts on the job to report unidentified planes.

In Columbus, George Arnold, Columbus-Franklin County CD chief, was quoted as saying:

"KEY PERSONNEL will be called by telephone to report to their stations when an attack is imminent. The red alert will be given through the state highway patrol and all cities in Ohio will sound their sirens at the same time. The exact time of the red alert will not be announced."

"An attempt will be made to stop all vehicles during the three-minute red alert over the entire state," Franklin County's Red Cross chapter was reported ready to simulate the registering, feeding and sheltering of 1,500 persons. Other make-believe disaster activities will also be carried out in the Columbus region.

Plans and requirements in the Pickaway County section, however, remain clouded with question marks. It was emphasized last year that Circleville's chief role during a major emergency should be to care for evacuees and casualties from the big, nearby cities.

Tait said the armory on E. Franklin St. in Circleville will be available to care for this phase of any emergency. He also expressed the hope that Pickaway County Sheriff Charles H. Radcliff will have his full staff of auxiliary deputies on duty during Sunday's test.

Bullion Is Found But No Claimers

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Police and U. S. Treasury agents have recovered four gleaming bars of gold bullion, but nobody seems to want to admit he lost them.

"We've got the gold but that's about all," said Paul Hart, agent in charge of the U. S. Secret Service here. The bullion was valued at $2,000.

The gold first was reported stolen from a Denver defense plant, but that theory fizzled. Officers said the bars were being peddled on the black market.

"We figure there is more to this gold business than we have been able to uncover," they said. "However, we were unable to find the owner so we won't be able to hold two suspects any longer."

Irish Trio Booms St. Paddy's Day

BOSTON (AP)—Kelly and Burke Shea want March 17—St. Patrick's Day—as a legal holiday in Massachusetts.

The three Democratic state representatives — James H. Kelly, James R. Burke, both Boston, and John M. Shea, Worcester — parodied Joseph I. Clarke's "The Fighting Race" to call attention to a bill they filed yesterday.

They said: "When the bill is up for passage, that surely will be the day 'And fighting for enactment, will be Kelly, Burke and Shea.'" do," he said. "I'm going up to see the Columbus police and see what sort of plans they have up there. Then I'll get the right dope on what we'll be expected to do down here."

Tait said he doubted there would be any need of a public warning system in Circleville. He added he believed that would be required only in the larger communities.

Council Handles Usual Variety Of Business Between High Spots

City Council moved with varying speeds through its customary assortment of secondary business Tuesday night while the lawmakers weren't discussing the bypass or debating arrangements for the new city court.

Early in the meeting it was disclosed that notes for immediate financing of the Watt St. and Fairview Ave. sewer projects will be sold to the city's sinking fund. Later, assessments paid by the property owners will repay the loan.

In a discussion between Councilmen John Robinson and Ray Cook, it was emphasized that Council has taken no stand as yet on proposed merger of the city and county health departments. Any final city action, it was explained, would require a Council vote.

Councilman Joe Brink said he understood a vote by Pickaway County commissioners would also be necessary, if the merger plan comes up for official decision.

JAMES VALENTINE informally presented to Council a preliminary plat of the Valentine property, already within the city limits. Lawmakers said Valentine, part-owner of the area, hopes to open it for development in connection with the program for community growth.

Swinging into new measures, Council made city ordinance conform with the new state statute on a jail term for drunk drivers. Under a new state statute, all drunk drivers must spend at least three days in jail. And that goes also now under city law.

Councilman Boyd Horn indicated he still thinks the city could house its own prisoners cheaper in the city jail than they can be kept in the county bastille, under a new contract.

Under another ordinance given final okay on first reading—under suspension of rules—drunks in public in Circleville can be fined up to $50, and jailed up to 30 days for the first offense. The new ordinance replaces one which carried only a penalty of $5 and costs.

The ordinance on public drunks

Careless Korean Housewife Held

PUSAN (AP)—South Korean police are holding a Korean housewife on a disastrous $40 million Pusan fire, the worst in Korea's history.

A police spokesman said she is accused of leaving a small charcoal stove burning unattended when she left home. It burned down her house and high winds spread the blaze over one sixth of Pusan, a city of more than a million people. The fire toll was 4 known dead, 105 injured and 31,300 homeless.

Rubber Factory Shut By Strike

BARBERTON (AP)—A wildcat strike stopped production by some 400 workers today at the Seiberling Rubber Co. The company said the walkout started after four men were laid off for refusing assigned work.

Victor Flaherty, president of a CIO-United Rubber Workers local, said the union was urging members to return to work so the dispute could be settled in orderly fashion.

passed over the opposition of Horn, who observed:

"Lots of times a person gets a little too much and it's not his fault and they turn around and arrest him." The councilman indicated he was talking only about imbibers who do not make a public nuisance of themselves.

AFTER HEARING the new ordinance on the bypass and holding it to first reading, Council then moved steadily through a collection of old business.

Measures passed in this group: Transferred $900 from the general fund to the fund for special police.

Transferred $500 from the general fund to the fund for gas and oil supplies for the police department.

Transferred $225 from the water works operating fund to the fund for salaries and extra labor.

Cleared the way for the city to sell bonds to pay its share of the costs of the N. Court St. improvement job, completed about two years ago.

Transferred $900 from the sewer rental fund to the maintenance and supply fund of the sewage plant.

Council held to first reading a request for $500 to buy office supplies for the police department. It approved a request to transfer $2,000 from the auto street repair fund to the fund for materials.

THEN, A short time before Council drifted into a merry discussion on how to welcome the new city court on Jan. 1, it was agreed the traffic light at Washington and Franklin streets should be made "permanent".

However, no final action was taken. City Solicitor George Gerhardt first must bring in the necessary ordinance.

Blood-Thinning Drugs Helping Heart Cases

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Blood-thinning drugs might have saved 640,000 Americans who died of heart attacks in the last 10 years—a life every eight minutes—a physician said today.

The drugs, anticoagulants, help dissolve or prevent blood clots which block the main artery to the heart. Dicoumarol and heparin are main examples.

How they have proved their dramatic lifesaving ability was described today to the American Medical Assn. by Dr. E. Sterling Nichol of Miami, Fla.

In 10 years, probably eight million Americans have been stricken with these heart attacks, he said.

"If anticoagulants had been used in all cases, the death rate would have been reduced from 24 to 16 per cent, which means 640,000 lives might have been saved. Actually, less than one fifth of the cases were treated, but even so at least 100,000 probably have been saved."

The drugs can work if given before, or even after some heart attacks, Dr. Nichol said. The heart attacks often give warning signals, hours or even weeks before the damaging blockade of the heart. Pain is a main warning signal.

The drugs must be used carefully, to prevent hemorrhage from too-thin blood, Dr. Nichol cautioned. They and other drugs now are being studied also in thousands of patients as a means of preventing later heart attacks.

ABOUT HUMPTY DUMPTY

BIG NEWS FROM BRITAIN these days has a culinary flavor—the egg can be unscrambled, after all. Ever since the Tories have again been in charge of British policy-making, they have been striving to undo the omelet the socialists had made of the steel industry.

A belief had been assiduously cultivated by the leftwingers as to the practical impossibility of denationalizing any state-subsidized industry. The Labor Party added to this canard by threatening, if ever restored to power, to confiscate any formerly nationalized property found in private hands.

It is against this background that the Conservative government's success in disposing of the first of 80 government-owned steel properties has become all the more salutary. Purchase applications tripled the amount of stock offered to private investors, giving officials reason to hope that the entire procedure will be accomplished much more smoothly than they had dared to hope.

Free enterprise is making a decided comeback in Britain and the Churchill government has been emboldened to suggest that landlords, long hogtied by rent controls, be allowed a raise in rents to finance improvements to their properties. The laboring element is also disenchanted by state ownership, as demonstrated by the Trade Union Council's recent repudiation of further nationalization projects.

To be sure, the time is ripe to put Humpty Dumpty together again. Nursery-rhyme wisdom to the contrary, the Conservatives are showing it can be done.

IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

WHEN THE SENATE SMALL business committee made the claim that the Civil Aeronautics Board had not dealt fairly with the irregular, non-scheduled air lines in the past it precipitated discussion of the various factors involved which will eventually be of benefit to the entire air transport industry, and the public in general.

This charge of unfairness comes after 15 years of control by the CAB, during which time it is understood irregular lines have enjoyed a certain amount of leniency regarding regulation which must have been to their advantage.

Now the board is being urged to grant non-scheduled lines the right to make a certain number of flights a month over regular routes, which would be to a certain extent at least in competition with established or certificated lines. The principle involved is the right of entry of new businesses into an industry.

The non-skeds have made notable contributions to the progress of air transportation, for which they deserve credit. But they have previously been considered com-

These Days

Life in this country has become increasingly complicated in all its phases since we embarked on war and world-leadership and suffered the Russian counterattack of espionage and infiltration. It just seems as though nobody can mind his own business any more.

One of the complications of our times is that the police power of government may no longer be blind to the presence of spies within the government itself.

Adlai Stevenson joins with Senator Joe McCarthy in a wish to eliminate spies and espionage, but he would do the eliminating with dignity and politeness. All of this is very nice and gentlemanly but will not rid the country of spies.

It ought to be recalled that the type of espionage and corruption which the Russians now employ was not invented by the Communists. It has a long history in European, particularly Russian, diplomacy.

The corruption of an official, high or low, of one country by the secret police of another is an ancient European art. Fouché did very well in its use for Napoleon; Nicholas II employed this art through his Okhrana.

In the United States, we did not suffer from it as long as we were isolated from European affairs. It moved in upon us in 1934, but what must have surprised the Russians, and certainly does surprise us, is that so large a number of Americans could be recruited for this work, most often on a voluntary basis.

(It needs to be noted that there is no evidence that the Nazi tried to establish a similar operation.)

Wire-tapping is abhorrent to Americans because it does not give the hunted even a warning. It is like a police car on a road that does not show it is a police car. The first indication that the fellow who endangers his own and other people's lives has is when he hears the siren.

Nevertheless, it must be recognized that the criminal, particularly the spy and the conspirator, never serves a warning. He may sing "God Bless America" louder than anybody else and put a proximity fuse in his lunchbox. He may denounce the Soviet conspiracy and make photostats of top secret documents. That is what conspiracy means and what conspirators do naturally.

Nor do subversives look like subversives. There is no stereotype. It is impossible to pick out a man and say that he looks like a Stalinist or a Trotskyist or Joe McCarthy.

Harry Dexter White was a fine figure of a man and Alger Hiss looked like a candidate for a stag line. The assumption that those who like to generalize make that most of these conspirators are Jews or foreigners is, of course, nonsense. Among the leading Communist figures are men and women of our very best families, going back to colonial times.

plementary to rather than competitive of regular lines. If they are to become competitive then it stands to reason they must operate under stipulated rules made for all, and not granted further concessions, as inferred by the Senate committee.

By the same token there must be no monopoly in air transport. The industry should be open to all who can qualify under the authority of the CAB and in keeping with public interest and convenience. Air transportation is becoming a giant industry, but one which will not be too successful if forced to operate on some sort of double standard as to rules and regulations.

Decrease in Field of Vision Can Be a Sign of Social Ill

By HERMAN N. BUNDSEN, M.D.

Penicillin and prevention are each a P-complex serving to make syphilis a gradually decreasing cripple of our nation's health. Our local and national health authorities deserve great commendation for their work on this problem.

Great Backlog

It has been estimated that there is still in the population of the United States a backlog of over two million persons who have had syphilis and whose treatment, if any, has been inadequate according to medical standards. This group of neglected persons may develop blindness and involvement of the nervous system in the future as a result of their syphilitic history.

Many of these persons wait until falling vision starts before consulting a physician, and then it is often too late to save their vision. Many of these individuals complain of eye difficulties for as long as 18 months before doing anything about it.

The First Sign

One of the first signs will be a decrease in the field of vision. In other words, they do not see objects to the side of them as well as they normally should. Another early sign may be sluggish pupils which do not contract readily when exposed to light. The pupils also may appear unequal and irregular. This disease can be easily detected by a simple examination in a doctor's office.

Penicillin, given in large daily dosages, and continued for a 25 to 33 day period, may be sufficient to arrest this syphilitic process and to keep it from affecting the brain and eyes. The treatment is successful in a number of cases.

Persons with syphilis who have not had adequate treatment, or who already have eye symptoms, should have an immediate examination by their physician. In this way, penicillin may be used in time to help materially the afflicted person.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

P. T.: What causes fast and irregular heart beat?

Answer: A fast and irregular heart beat may be due to various causes. It may be due to just a nervous condition; it may be due to an extremely over-sensitive heart or may be caused by heart disease, such as rheumatic fever or coronary heart disease. High blood pressure may also be a cause. Anyone with this symptom should see his physician immediately for diagnosis.

The Cat's Paw

by — MARION SALTER

SYNOPSIS

Her cats weren't the only things worrying Charlotte Morgan, ace copywriter for the Kinsley Cummings advertising firm. There was her mother, who ran away from her father, and her, when she was 12. Charlotte had stolen jewelry to help her mother, although she despised her. Eric Hay was in love with her. Two other employees of "The King" hated her. And her cats kept trying to tell her something. Cummings discovers Charlotte stole the gems and makes a date to meet Charlotte and her mother, after offering to help Charlotte to the big time. Charlotte and her mother call on "The King" at his home. Charlotte's mother leaves alone. Charlotte finally breaks personal relations with Cummings but he threatens to expose her theft if she quits his employ. At a co-workers' Christmas party it is revealed "The King" has been getting threatening letters; and Charlotte runs when Eric wants to dance with her.

CHAPTER TWELVE

CHARLOTTE slipped past her hostess, went down in the elevator, out to the wet street. She'd go home to the cats. What was the cliché—the more I see of people the better I like the animals? And cats weren't hypocrites. Suddenly she wondered whether she would become one of those old lady recluses who come out only at night to feed stray cats.

She began to smell the gas when she was only part way up the stairs, and she roared the rest of the way, breathless, her heart pounding. But it wasn't the stairs, it was the fear. She couldn't find her key, and when she did, her shaking hand could hardly manage the lock. And then she was in her apartment, consciously surprised at her own efficiency as she held her scarf over her nostrils and threw open the windows and turned off the burners of the stove.

One, two, three, four, all of them open. The sickening sweet odor overwhelmed her. And the fear. The room blurred before her. She got back to the open window, and then she saw them, under the tree they'd loved so much. She made herself touch the small stiff bodies, gather them up, and she sat rocking on her knees, back and forth. The tears rained down her face, and inside the core of hate hardened.

There was a minute when she thought of closing the windows again and just sitting there. Giving up. Later she thought it was the hate that kept her going.

She dragged one foot after the other, down the stairs, wondering vaguely that no one else had smelled the gas, deciding it was because everyone had gone away for Christmas. She took the bus at the corner, and sat far in the back, leaning her forehead against the cold pane. The sleek pavements reflected the dancing neon signs, red and green and gold for Christmas. A stooped man stood outside a restaurant, looking in. An old woman rifled a garbage can.

Charlotte tossed and twisted in her bed, trying to think, insomnia in possession of her body. However she lay she could hear her pumping pounding heart, and her wide-open eyes saw shapes in the night. Her brain was a switchboard abuzz with busy signals. The wind wailed with human woe, and out on the dark river the foghorns mourned. Suddenly Charlotte jerked upright. The poison-pen letters, the "threats of exposure." She'd almost forgotten about them.

By morning she had a plan. Not a guaranteed-satisfaction-or-your-money-back plan, but something to start.

At the ASPCA she found a nice young man.

"I'd like you to come for my cats," she said. "They're dead. Asphyxiated, gas. I wonder why I didn't telephone you. I don't know why I came all the way..."

"Are you all right, miss? You better sit down."

"I'm fine, Charlotte thought; just wonderful. 'I guess I got a little gas, too,' she said. 'Could somebody come now?' She could only think that it was important someone should see it, smell it. She must have a witness, she had this feeling she must have a witness. When it was a matter of murder, there should always be a witness, if possible."

They took her back, two nice young men from the ASPCA. Too late to prevent cruelty to animals. They patted her shoulder and said she mustn't blame herself, they looked at her old-fashioned gas stove and said they'd had cases before of cats jumping up and pushing the handles with a playful paw.

But not four handles. Charlotte didn't tell them it had been four handles. Charlotte didn't tell them it was murder. King had known what she'd mind most, literally the only thing she would mind. Gray April and golden May; her friends.

In ancient Egypt, killing a cat was punishable by death. Charlotte sat alone in the awful, empty apartment. There was an after-funeral feel about it. The tree. She couldn't bear to look at the tree. She struggled down the stairs with it and left it on the sidewalk. Take it away, New York Sanitation Department. She could hardly climb back up the flights.

Now the other tenants began to come home. Through the paper partitions came the slithered shuffle of steps in the hall, the murmur of voices, the protest of bedsprings beneath the weight of tired bodies. So near and yet so far, these people with whom she shared the same roof and nothing more. They were strangers. "We are all strangers upon earth."

Charlotte tossed and twisted in her bed, trying to think, insomnia in possession of her body. However she lay she could hear her pumping pounding heart, and her wide-open eyes saw shapes in the night. Her brain was a switchboard abuzz with busy signals.

The wind wailed with human woe, and out on the dark river the foghorns mourned. Suddenly Charlotte jerked upright. The poison-pen letters, the "threats of exposure." She'd almost forgotten about them.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — Ever since Rep. Martin Dies of Texas began his investigation of American Communists almost 20 years ago, and especially since the Harry Dexter White climax of the last few weeks, the curbstone question about this Red conspiracy in our midst has been:

"How is it that Americans with fine educations, solid backgrounds, good homes and families, and good jobs and prospects, could betray the country which gave them these opportunities—which gave them freedom to talk, to worship, to vote, to work and to live as they pleased?"

QUESTION—Although no Eisenhower, no Truman, no Brownell, no McCarthy and no congressional committee has tried to answer this question, it is the basic problem behind the current controversy. It is fundamental to our way of life and living.

Either we are a failure or they are. Which? Unanswered, the verdict may be against us. So, this column might be entitled a psychiatric study of traitors and their collaborators within the government.

Fortunately, a close-up view of the anti-American actors in this harrowing tragedy, provides extremely comforting conclusions. A nonprofessional, psychiatric study of these political perverts discloses that they were abnormal Americans for quite definable causes. They just were not our kind of people.

OVEREDUCATED — For one thing, they were not "well educated." They were "overeducated."

As students, instructors and clamorous claimants for unnecessary degrees, they lingered pathologically long in academic cloisters.

They could have obtained far more education in business and industry. But they did not have the guts to step out of school and go to work. That observation applies to every subversive listed in FBI files. College was their escape from bread-and-butter reality.

BACKGROUND — Few came from good homes, solid backgrounds or constructive environment. Many came from homes broken by divorce or desertion. Some were born abroad—Russia, Poland, Lithuania, Canada—where their families had suffered extreme hardships, as well as social, economic and political frustration. They were hunted and harassed peoples.

Few had "good jobs." Most of them starved during the early days of the depression. They herded into Uncle Sam's service during these years at an average salary of $2,500.

Harry Dexter White's salary was only $3,000, although he had corralled numerous academic degrees when Prof. Jacob Viner called him and Laughlin Currie to the Treasury in 1934. They were failures in their own mind.

DREAMERS — Their lack of guts, their sense of insecurity and their cowardice were demonstrated by their rush to accept government employment, just as they had been unhappily content with poor pay as collegiate instructors and beneficiaries of fellowship grants. They embarked on a restless, nervous, hungry voyage for security. They were yellow!

The depression had a devastating effect on them. It confirmed their collegiate and professorial beliefs that laissez-faire capitalism was a failure. They tossed Adam Smith out the campus window in favor of Karl Marx's system of a planned society.

They became convinced—and, perhaps, sincerely—of the need for a regimented economy, government controls of agriculture, industry and the consumer (NRA, AAA and OPA), and of centralized power, direction and manipulation. All these ideas, through their influence, were embodied and incorporated in Roosevelt's New Deal and Truman's Fair Deal.

Their undoing was that they envisaged Communist Russia as the realization of their dreams, and, although perhaps not meaning to be traitors, they sold out Uncle Sam to Joe Stalin. They were psychopathic, not true Americans.

County Demonstration Groups Hold Joint Meeting

Christmas Hints Feature Program

The December project for the Home Demonstration groups of Pickaway County was a cooperative open house program Monday afternoon in St. Philip's Episcopal parish hall with the theme "Make Your Own Merry Christmas". The program and exhibits emphasized the value of a Christmas Spirit and cultivated at home.

Mrs. William Purdin was general chairman for the program and the following chairmen and committees cooperated with demonstrations and exhibits which were provided by representatives from each county group:

Reception and registration, Mrs. William Defenbaugh and Mrs. Louis Hill; tree decorations, Mrs. Judson Beougher; shadow boxes, Mrs. Fairy Alkire; miscellaneous home decorations, centerpieces and favors, Mrs. Harold Adkins, Mrs. James Fortney and Mrs. Harvey Brigner; metal craft, Mrs. Robert Bowers and Mrs. Sterling Poling; baskets, Mrs. Gladden Troutman and Mrs. William Purdin; textile painting, Mrs. Dalton DeLong; cookie display and tea time, Mrs. W. A. Wintersteen, Mrs. Winifred Bidwell and Mrs. Thomas Farmer.

Most of the displays were accompanied by directions, an outlay of necessary working tools, the step-by-step progress, and the cost of the finished product. A combined program and "home-made" suggestion and pattern book was presented at registration.

Between sessions of observation and fellowship the following program was presented: Seasonal Piano selections, Mrs. Dick Tootle; Round Table Revue of Traditions and Legends, Mrs. Chaney Vance, Mrs. Kenneth Shell, Mrs. Fred Riggan, Mrs. Luther List and Mrs. Ralph Haughn; Vocal Solos by Mrs. Cecil Ward; The Christmas Story from St. Luke by Mrs. Gladden Troutman; "Silent Night" in two versions by Mrs. John Carr from Germany and Mrs. James Burris from Italy. The piano accompanist throughout the program was Mrs. T. H. the.

Miss Marie Walters, assistant state home demonstration leader from Ohio State University, spoke briefly at the close of the program. The Cookie Display, attractively arranged with descriptive title, recipe, and the baker's name, was the highlight of the concluding feature of the "home-made" program—refreshments.

A display of home made gifts from International Farm Youth Exchanges from India emphasized the world citizenship phase of extension activity. The related Pennies For Friendship Jar received generous contributions. These "pennies" from members and friends of Home Demonstration groups throughout the country, are the main support of Associated Country Women of the World, a national and international project of better understanding through world fellowship.

Public Assured Christmas Light Setup Didn't Require City Funds

Circleville residents were reminded Wednesday that the community's new set of Christmas lights for the downtown area was purchased, installed and put into use without cost to the city.

Chairman George Fishpaw of the committee that steered the fund to purchase the $3,500 trimmings said some local residents apparently are under the impression that some of the cost was met with municipal funds. All of the amount was raised through the contributions of local industries, business places, community groups and individual citizens. A few industries have yet to announce their donations.

"Some of the people must think the city used public money for at least part of the Christmas lights," Fishpaw said, "because that's the impression we got while the trimmings were being set up at Court and Main."

"The power company workers said some women came along and demanded to know why the city claims to be without money when it can finance such an elaborate display of Christmas lights! I don't know how anybody could have that idea, when we had plenty of publicity while we were conducting the drive. The cost, of course, is being met by public donations."

Many community leaders commended the work of the committee led by Fishpaw when the lights were given their first tryout last Friday night. One of the first to go on record praising the display was City Councilman Joe Brink. He said the committee did "a splendid job" and expressed the hope that "the people who criticized the city for lack of trimmings last Christmas come around again this year."

Contributors to the Christmas Lights drive, in addition to those already published, were listed as follows:

Glitt's Court and Main Restaurant, Harold Moats Auto Sales, Hummel and Plum, Ben H. Gordon, Phillip's Restaurant, Joe Christy, Children's Shop, Phil Smith, W. C. That was just the half of it, they admitted yesterday.

Fifteen minutes later Jail Matron Ellie P. Eady sent down a second pistol to the desk sergeant. This one had been concealed in the prisoner's brassiere.

Lawmakers Reluctantly Put Out Frayed Welcome Rug For Court

City Councilmen made it clear Tuesday night that the welcome rug will be thin when Circleville's new municipal court moves in to share the room used by the lawmakers after the first of the year.

In fact, the city legislators repeatedly hinted that some of the first returns from the new municipal court should be used to buy a new rug. But the rug now being used in Council chambers was only one of various items that figured in a laugh-studded debate shortly before the lawmakers ended their regular session Tuesday night.

It all started when Councilman Joe Brink gave a committee report on a recent huddle held by three Councilmen and at least twice as many members of the Pickaway County Bar Association, including Attorney Sterling Lamb who was present as judge-elect of the new city court. Purpose of the conference was to decide where the city court sessions would be held and settle similar arrangements.

Up until Council's session Tuesday night, it seemed generally agreed the court would use Council's meeting room for hearings, and that the judge and clerk would also be assigned rooms on the second floor of city hall. In Tuesday's session, Councilman Ray Cook made it clear he isn't at all happy about the arrangement, and none of the other Councilmen appeared enthusiastic about it either.

WHEN BRINK reported for the committee, which also included Cook and Councilman Harold Clifton, it was decided immediately that city hall's assortment of typewriters, filing cabinets and other items should be surveyed before new supplies are bought for the city court.

Then, Brink went on, it had been suggested — but only suggested — that the office of the city safety director be moved downstairs in city hall to the south end of the "police office". Safety-Health Director C. O. Leist now has an upstairs office which is tentatively tagged to be turned over to the clerk of the city court.

Clerk of Council Fred Nicholas, it was explained, could move into the mayor's office, sharing the quarters with Mayor Robert E. Hedges after Jan. 1. Nicholas will move over from the Masonic Building. At this stage of the discussion, the talk began to take informal side-tracks when Brink said one of the upstairs rooms in city hall was still being used by the Benevolent Society. "It's got a lot of old clothing in it," he said, "and we'll have to find some place for all that."

"Put it," Clifton chuckled, "in the mayor's office."

The laughter all but drowned out a query from Police Chief Elmer Merriman who asked if the "beer and wine" had been removed from the room set aside for use of the society. The chief's remark was not intended to reflect upon the society, but indicated only that somebody at some time had put "beer and wine" in the room along with the old clothing.

"There was a lot of that junk in there," the chief observed, but his comment apparently was heard by only a few of those present. Nobody at least offered to follow up the line of questioning.

THINGS APPEARED to be returning to normalcy when Mayor-elect Robert E. Hedges, a spectator at Council's meeting, told Brink the old clothing held for the society had already been moved from the room in city hall. Matters took an other hilarious nosedive, however, when Councilman George Crites pointed out the tentative plans would require that "drunks be brought upstairs for court."

Both Council President Ben Gordon and Brink hastened to assure him "the drunks will be sober before their cases are heard," but meanwhile Clifton had announced: "We're going to put in an escalator!"

The idea tickled most of those present and Crites added:

"Oh I see, you're just going to install a belt line and haul 'em upstairs."

It was about this time that Gordon glanced around the floor near his desk and observed, to nobody in particular:

"We need a new carpet in here too."

And across Council chambers, Brink made mention of an air conditioning unit.

COOK THEN declared:

"I dissent from any sentiment that we should allow the city court to use the whole second floor". It would give the muni-court, he insisted, better accommodations than any other city court in the state of Ohio.

"If $50 a week rent isn't fair for the use of this room, then it isn't worth a cent," he told all concerned.

"We didn't agree to it yet—we didn't say yes," Brink said.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt then undertook to impress Cook with the need of a fairly large room—somewhere—for the new city court. Gerhardt didn't insist that the court be allowed to convene in Council chambers, but he warned that inadequate room for hearings would lead to great inconvenience and confusion.

"Listen, Ray," he told Cook, "this is going to be a court room! You're going to have a business in here."

In elaboration, the solicitor said many cases which are not brought before common pleas court under the present setup will be brought to the city court, pointing out the muni-court setup will get business now handled by the justice of peace here in addition to that brought before the mayor's court—plus many small civil cases involving amounts under $100 which cannot be brought before common pleas court.

COOK ATTEMPTED to question the solicitor on certain points involved along this line, but Gerhardt said he preferred not to go into details while a representative of The Herald was present.

However, he did warn Cook against forcing the city court into a room so small "they'll be sitting on top of one another." And Cook retorted that he didn't believe "such prestige" would be required for the muni-court arrangements.

Gerhardt said "when you get six people inside the mayor's office now you can hardly move around." And Chief Merriman intervened to point out: "You have to remember our radio, too." Noise of the police radio, it has been emphasized, will interfere with any court proceedings held nearby.

"Then too," Gerhardt went on, "you have to have room for spectators."

"You don't need them," said Cook.

"Oh yes you do!" the solicitor told him. "In a court of law you have to allow them in. I hope I never live to see the day when we have star chamber sessions in a court of law."

A moment later, the gay spirit that kept cropping into the debate hit its maximum for the evening when Crites attempted to say something about "violating the sanctity of this chamber". However, he choked on the thought and many others laughed with him.

"WELL, ALL I can say," Brink shrugged wearily, "is that it's getting near Jan. 1, and that Council can do whatever it wants to do—and on Jan. 1 we'll begin operating a city court."

"If we could get a new carpet and a new stove out of it," Crites observed, "it might be good, but then if we got too much the police and firemen would be after us for a pay raise."

Gordon then decided to check on the age of the rug in Council chambers. "How old is it?" he asked Nicholas. And the clerk, checking in turn with Chief Merriman, said the present rug dates back to 1907. "It's taken a beating," several agreed with grins.

Shortly before the discussion ended, members of Council were told that spokesmen for the lawmakers had to "sit and listen" for the most part during the conference with a committee repre-

Safety Belts In Automobiles Urged To Save More Lives

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Safety belts in automobiles could save thousands of lives in highway accidents, an American Medical Assn. exhibit suggested today.

It finds that 453 out of 633 persons killed in one year in Indiana probably could have survived by some safety changes. They were not killed by accident collapse of their cars. They died from being thrown and tossed.

Safety belts, crash helmets, or safety changes within cars apparently could have given them a new ticket on life.

The exhibition is presented by Sgt. Elmer Paul, head of the auto crash injury research section, Indiana state police, and Trooper John B. Klein. It is part of a symposium on prevention of highway deaths at the AMA's mid-winter meeting opening today.

Of 633 persons killed in accidents analyzed in 1952, more than half died of skull fractures, 15 per cent from neck injuries, and 22 per cent from chest injuries. Many of the chest injuries were drivers flung against steering wheels.

senting the bar association. "Councilmen shouldn't sit and listen," declared Cook.

The debate ended when Clifton in serious mood said:

"Even if we don't want to give up this Council chamber, I think it'll be a good thing."

Crites joined with similar sentiments, "at least until we see how it works out."

Cook went along with the idea, but only after he warned that the court must be notified "it's only until we see if we can make better arrangements"

Cleveland Relief Handled By County

CLEVELAND (AP)—City Council yesterday approved the merger of city and county relief services for an 11-year period starting Jan. 1.

The city's $2½ million-a-year relief operation will be taken over by the county. Proponents of the merger claimed it would reduce administrative cost, increase efficiency and spare relief clients the confusion of dealing with two agencies.

Pro Gridders Near Records On Offense

PHILADELPHIA (P)—Unless Otto Graham and Joe Perry go completely to pieces within the next two weeks, they'll be the new passing and ground gaining champions of the National Football League.

Graham, the accurate Cleveland aerial artist, is far out in front as the NFL's forward passing leader while Perry, the 220-pound San Francisco fullback has a comfortable lead in rushing.

Official statistics released today by the league give the veteran Graham an average gain of 10.28 yards per pass attempt. That's more than two yards a try better than his nearest competitors. Bobby Thomason of Philadelphia has 8.18 and Norm Van Brocklin of Los Angeles is third with 8.13. Van Brocklin won the passing title last year with an 8.47 average.

Perry, who played only junior college football before joining the 49ers five years ago, rolled up 82 yards against Baltimore Sunday to push his rushing total to 872 yards. That leaves him 130 yards ahead of Deacon Dan Towler of the Rams who won the title with 894 last year. Perry has an average of 5.3 yards per carry compared to Towler's 5.7.

While Thomason is trailing Graham in passing averages, the Philadelphia needs only two more TD tosses to become the 11th player in NFL history to throw 20 scoring passes in a single season. Graham has only nine aerial touchdowns. Graham, however, is out in front in total passing yardage, completing 148 of 320 attempts for 2,365. Thomason's 135 completions in 254 attempts have netted 2,078 yards.

Lou Groza, Cleveland's old master at field goals and conversions, leads the scorers with 85 points. But San Francisco's Gordon Soltau whose 20-point burst against the Colts raised him from fifth to second place, now has a total of 81 for the season.

Laurelville Beats Monroe's Indians In 74-61 Windup

The Laurelville High School basketball warriors invaded the Monroe Indian territory Tuesday night and left the Indians holding the bag to the tune of 74 to 61.

Although getting off to a slow start in the first frame, Laurelville turned on the heat in the second quarter to pile up a 42 to 29 lead.

The first quarter of the battle ended with an 18 to 18 tie, but from then on the Indians were outplayed and outmanned. The score at the end of the third quarter was 60 for Laurelville and 47 for the Redskins.

Prior to the main show, the Laurelville reserves made it a complete rout by defeating the Monroe runners-up by a score of 50 to 21.

Sport Briefs

DETROIT — Soldier Norman Hayes of Boston, who hasn't fought in six months, will try to make the most of a three-day pass to night when he meets Utah's Garth Panter in Olympia Stadium. This 10-round clash of hopeful middleweights will be televised from coast-to-coast at 10 p. m.

CINCINNATI — Captain of the 1954 Xavier University football team will be Lou Magliano, 179-pound back, named last night at the school's annual football banquet.

MELBOURNE, Australia — In just one of a series of stunning blows to America's Davis Cup hopes, the United States top doubles team of Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas went down before Australia's second best today in the Victorian Championships.

LOS ANGELES — Ten football fatalities—two in college, two in athletic club levels five in high school and one in sandlot play—have been reported this year to the Football Fatality Committee of the American Coaches Assn.

CLEVELAND — Jerry Helliun, benched by a broken arm six weeks ago, is due to go back on the Cleveland Browns' active list this week, replacing linebacker Tommy Thompson, who was hospitalized by a dislocated knee.

Sokolsky's These Days

So, the agencies charged with watching them and ferreting them out have a very tough time of it, particularly as our laws were written to protect the rights of decent people. The conspirators take full advantage of the law, particularly the statute of limitations, which works in their favor.

If evidence obtained by wire-tapping could be used in trials, more conspirators would be caught. Attorney General Brownell has proposed that Congress grant the Department of Justice that right. Many Americans believe that the FBI, engaged in wholesale wire-tapping, that thousands, if not millions, of phones are tapped. I have made inquiries and learned that less than 200 have been tapped at any one time by the FBI and that is obviously a very small number, involving only such matters as kidnapping, extortion, espionage, and internal security in the entire United States.

None of the evidence so obtained may now be used in a Federal court. It is believed that many conspirators could be indicted if wire-taps could be used as evidence.

Some bills recently proposed in Congress permitting wire-tapping are self-defeating. As long as the conspiracy exists, no advance notice should be given to the conspirator and most of these bills involve the possibility of such a notice.

Conspiracy is a dirty business and conspirators must be astute men or women or they would not be accepted for this kind of work. We ought to be as smart and as capable as they are.

Xavier Chieftain Raps Fake Injuries

CINCINNATI — The Rev. Paul L. O'Connor, dean of Xavier University, last night delivered an off-the-cuff attack on coaches who allow their boys to fake injuries.

"Any coach teaching a young man to lie is morally corrupting that young man's character," he said.

He referred to news stories of players pretending they were hurt so that the clock would be stopped. He called the practice a deceit.

While he did not name Notre Dame, it has been the Irish team which has been under attack for its "injury" tactics in a 14-14 tie with Iowa.

Lattner Awarded 2 Top Trophies

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — If Johnny Lattner gets on his feet to address his hosts at the Maxwell and Heisman awards dinners those present may witness a neat bit of sidestepping.

Notre Dame's brilliant 20-year-old halfback, voted both awards yesterday, is just as hard to corner in conversation as he is on the football field.

Asked for his reaction to being chosen for college football's top two individual honors, the boyish All-America said only that it was "sure a thrill."

Non-Citizen Set To Cast His Vote

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. — Immigration service officer John Wilson notified Andres Torres, 31, Albuquerque, loitering in his office.

After "shaking him down," Wilson said, he found a voting registration slip. Then he found Torres wasn't a U. S. citizen.

When Torres pleaded guilty to falsely representing himself as a citizen, he said he had registered once before—in 1944—but his name had been purged from voting rolls.

School Bus Driver Keeps Son Home

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — Fred Drury, 50, a farmer who doubles as a school bus driver, has been fined $50 because his boy is delinquent in attending classes. He was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

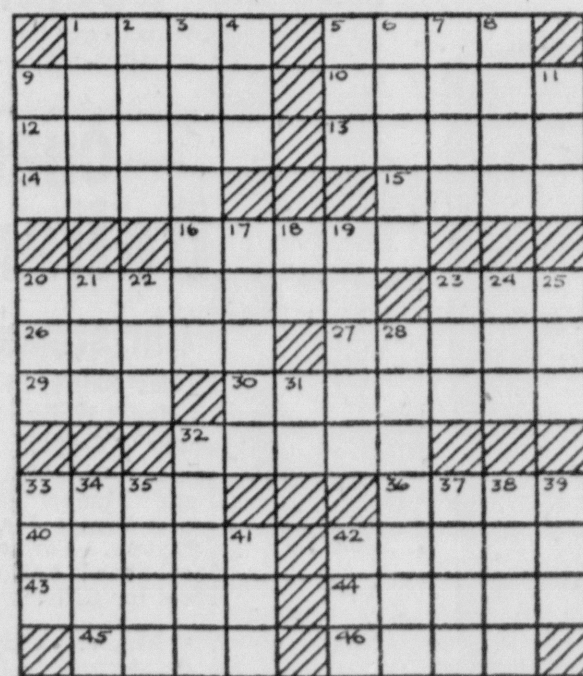

The defendant told the court he needed his son, Ira, to help run the 100-acre farm.
